Forecast For East Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 08 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Windy with rain at times, becoming cold overnight.

Today:
Breezy and rather cloudy at first on Thursday though feeling slightly milder. Some occasional outbreaks of rain, especially over the Peak District. Becoming windy later with some brighter spells but also showers for all parts in the afternoon. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Tonight:
Rather cloudy as a band of briefly heavy rain sinks southwards during Thursday night, eventually introducing cold air from the north. Winds will become light. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Friday:
Rain should clear the south during the morning. A rather cool afternoon with light winds and some sunny spells. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Cold with a risk of wintry showers on Saturday and Sunday, but also some sunny spells. Likely drier and milder into Monday, but with widespread overnight frosts likely.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.